UNIQUE THERAPY, PRESCRIPTIONS AND TREATMENT DENIED UNTIL MORRIS & REYNOLDS STEPS IN

Coverage for prescription medications in America is a volatile topic as insurers and employers attempt to manage the costs of ever increasing, and costly medications. We have numerous examples of helping clients obtain coverage and authorization for the medications that they need, including one related to an autistic child that requires very specialized therapies, along with expensive, unique prescriptions. This care and medication is routinely denied and excluded by insurance companies.

Working tirelessly with the family, the prescribing doctors and the insurance company, the agents and underwriters at Morris & Reynolds built a strong case that allowed us to appeal the insurance company declinations by demanding that the care and prescriptions should be covered and approved. As a result of our work all of the medications were approved and, thus, the child's care and progress was able to continue, along with the family having the comfort that their insurance coverage will pay their costly bills.
